

A little bit about me

We are a group of internet marketing and copywriting specialists that have been in the business in some form or another for nearly ten years. The online advertising industry has, of course, changed dramatically since the late nineties more so than just about any other industry, with the roles we have been involved with over the years having also evolved and differed, leading us to where we are today, with our speciality being matching copy to web traffic.